First, let me begin by thanking the members of the committee for the invitation to be here today. I have consulted with my UN colleagues in the Caribbean and the Pacific and will endeavor to provide a brief overview of our main activities in the non-self-governing territories that are the subject of this meeting. This includes activities in Tokelau in the Pacific, and in Anguilla, Bermuda, the British Virgin Islands, the Cayman Islands, Montserrat, and the Turks and Caicos. According to our records, the UN does not have significant development programming in the other ten non-self-governing territories
