

All these elements converge to create the reality of the inevitability of the Moroccan-ness of the Sahara and of the Autonomy Initiative as the only endpoint of the political process.

On the economic and social levels, the State have taken concrete steps toward the emancipation and resilience of women in the Moroccan Sahara, namely through the promotion of local production and micro-enterprises.

The ultimate goal is for the Moroccan Sahara to be fully involved in this dynamic of growth, which Africa enjoys, not only on the continental dimension but also on the international scale. The Moroccan Sahara is emerging as a regional African economic
