

I hardly have anybody left to turn to for help. I have a strong feeling that I might have contracted HIV because my captor raped many Tutsi women during the genocide, but there is no reason for me to take a test yet. Its better to not find out, after all I can't afford medication anyway.

Today's Reading of the Testimonies marks the 15th Anniversary of the Rwandan genocide, in support of survivors like Jaqueline.