

NEW YORK, 6 JUL (AP)—The U.S. Supreme Court on Monday ruled that the federal government can sue to force states to comply with federal laws, a decision that could have far-reaching implications for the federal government's ability to enforce its laws.

NEW YORK, 6 JUL

