

()

Commitment

$ 2

Delivery (in 2014)

$ 2

Delivery (in 2014)

... 20 ... 20 ...

Gap

... 20 ...

Commitment

... -20 ...

Gap

... 20 ...

Commitment

... 20 ...

Commitment

U.S. AID has committed to providing up to $50 million for the expansion of mobile phone networks and access to mobile services in 2014.

Results (in 2014)

Cellular telephony

20 million people gained access to mobile phones, up from 20 million in 2013.

U.S. AID has committed to providing up to $50 million for the expansion of mobile phone networks and access to mobile services in 2014.

Internet access

0 million people gained access to the Internet, up from 0 million in 2013.

2 million people gained access to the Internet, up from 2 million in 2013.

Gaps

U.S. AID has committed to providing up to $50 million for the expansion of mobile phone networks and access to mobile services in 2014.

U.S. AID has committed to providing up to $50 million for the expansion of mobile phone networks and access to mobile services in 2014.

U.S. AID has committed to providing up to $50 million for the expansion of mobile phone networks and access to mobile services in 2014. 200 million people gained access to mobile phones, up from 20 million in 2013.

- X U.S. AID has committed to providing up to $50 million for the expansion of mobile phone networks and access to mobile services in 2014.
- X U.S. AID has committed to providing up to $50 million for the expansion of mobile phone networks and access to mobile services in 2014.
- X U.S. AID has committed to providing up to $50 million for the expansion of mobile phone networks and access to mobile services in 2014.
- X U.S. AID has committed to providing up to $50 million for the expansion of mobile phone networks and access to mobile services in 2014.