Consideration for official business travel during COVID-19

12. When the circumstances related to COVID-19 when official business travel is absolutely necessary, managers are encouraged to have individual discussions with staff members about their willingness and ability to travel, taking into consideration exigencies of service, personal circumstances and risk factors for the individuals including their family members. Managers should exercise maximum flexibility, full understanding and care during these discussions.

Preparation before travel

11. Travelers expecting to travel on official business should ensure that their travel documentation including visa requirements for transit, destination locations and return to the duty station are valid to enable travel in accordance with government travel policies.

12. Travelers should familiarize themselves with national and local travel advisories, WHO and UN guidelines and travel restrictions including quarantine requirements in their departure, arrival and destination countries. For more information, contact the State Department at 1-800-888-8884 or the State Department website at travel.state.gov.

14. UN personnel are also reminded that medical clearance for travel may be required in accordance with the provisions of T0110221: 04 on medical clearance.

Purchase of tickets

17. When travelers are authorized to purchase their own tickets through the lump sum option, they are advised to purchase tickets that allow for changes if necessary (e.g. departure and returning dates) without incurring additional fees and/or to take out appropriate travel cancellation insurance.

Safety measures during air travel

13. Safety measures implemented by airports and airlines are likely to vary considerably. General advice when traveling includes the following:

- Taking all regular travel precautions

- Not traveling if symptomatic

- Maintain physical distancing as much as possible, including avoiding queues where possible and following floor markings if provided

- Observe hand hygiene, particularly before eating or
